Let the most beautiful nattern obtainable be selected for a dinner service, and let all the races, be for some article thereunto appertaining. A scop tureun, a salad bowl, a pair of candelebras, a set of dish covers, or side dishes; are all beautiful pieces of plate when made of an approved nattern - much more beautiful to our taste than these flimsy, usoless, race cups. Instead of making the Challenge Cup an elaborate group of figures, as proposed, we say make it a set of splendid dish covers. Instead of giving a one hundered guinea plate, make it a

The system could be so arranged, by making a bargain with a first rate London jaweller, that the winner of a race might select what articles of the service he might please, Had this mode been established a few years ago, what a magnificent, service of plate would each of the large houses have been possessed of-a little history being attached to each and every piece, by way of provoking hilarity and convergation at the festive board! Now n made of rubbish is the result, which is useless from its monotony, and which it would
